First Buy

We can see that there are 3 continuous bullish candles indicating that there is a strong chance that it goes up. Hence I would have bought it here. The increased volume on the third day further supports this decision. Also the faster MA was rising and approaching the 200D MA, further saying high chance of price increase.

Second Buy

When I can see 3 red candles going down and the RSI also being high, this tells there is a bearish sentiment in the market. Hence I would make a sell/

Third Buy

I have drawn a rough line joining 3 places separated sufficiently where the price is a bit reluctant to move and sticky. Joining these and the price currently being above this line makes it a support line. So now when I see the three candlesticks going down, I would wish to sell hoping the stock goes back to support (atleast partially though not completely.)
